Well, Laura Jane, (and to whoever else reads it)

As I sit here, trying to think of something to say, I think of what a wonderful friend you've been throughout the year I've known you. You've come in so handy with me getting and keeping boyfriends that I'll always appreciate your kindness and your "long" letters, which have been so sweet. I now say (in blue and white) that you have some of the nicest and best looking cousins of any one person I have ever known. I think you're mighty lucky. (And, in case some of your "ugly duckling" cousins read this, this might not be them — unless from Hope Mills.) I think Lowell is one of the nicest, sweetest, and best looking boys I've ever met, even though at first it was hard getting him to say ~~a~~ anything — yet he's as near perfect as possible. I think I'd better think of something more to say besides of boys, even if I'm boy-crazy. Don't ever say anything about my poetry, for it would be embarrassing.

I think you have the prettiest mother, best looking dad, and cutest sister of anyone. Really though — you ain't so bad yourself. You've got me beat by far.

There's the bottom of the page so I'll quit, but in case you haven't got the full meaning of this writing, you're just plain a wonderful friend I hope I never lose! You're a friend in need — now and forever —

As always, Evelyn

Class Poem of 1951

School days are almost over for us Seniors.
Soon we will leave ole Broadway High;
and to our Alma-Mater,
It's hard to say goodby.

Tis both a sad and wonderful thing to be a graduate of Broadway School,
To have learned to take things in our stride
And to have learned the meaning of the golden rule.

Our school taught us to give and take,
To work together and to always reach for the higher things in life.
So soon we will try to represent a person of this type.

We are like the first graders,
Just starting out in life;
Or are we more like kites,
And as yet, uncertain of our flight.

Our days here are almost over.
Soon our footsteps will echo no more on this school's floor.
Our paths will be strewn with unseen barriers,
instead of beds of clover.

Broadway High, we hate to say goodbye;
You gave us a start,
And now you are giving us a push out into a strange field.
Keep your eye on us dear Alma-Mater, and see what this class will yield.

"If it's corn you want to grow,
Use Crib-Buster in every row."

You have had nothing quite like Crib-Buster for Corn, and its results should surprise you.

Our best salesmen are those who have used it. See us or our agent before you buy your fertilizer.
